KEYLINE STUDIO / RESEARCH

Field Notes

A reading companion, made for reflection.

The question

What makes a passage worth returning to?

Explore the small loop between reading, connection and reflection.

The first experiment

Give a reader one chapter and a quiet place for a thought.

Keep the source visible. Ask what changed their understanding.

Three principles

01 Keep the book at the centre of attention.

02 Make the next action clear, not loud.

03 Preserve context when a thought becomes a page.

Next review

Read. Connect. Revisit.

A useful prototype is a question made tangible.

Original fictional demonstration content. Not research findings.
